Gucci's Alternative Party Heels

The Italian fashion house's geek chic look lives on with these heels from their killer Resort 2016 collection. The preppy fringe, block heel and metallic finish make them the perfect choice for ladies who don't do OTT glamour, like me.

I always make a beeline for bold, mood-lifting buys when the weather turns, and have fallen in love with Monsoon's 'Florenca' coatigan. Here, they've ingeniously styled it up with a belted faux-fur gilet – definitely a trick that I'll be stealing.

Zara's Autumnal Colours

I've totally fallen for the new-season colour palette that's taken over Zara this week. Nature-inspired reds, tans and navy are all over the smart, boyish tailoring and bold patterns that the high-street hotspot does so well. I'm particularly obsessed with this rust-colored blazer. Try draping it over a simple shift dress or team it with a tailored shirt and jeans for the office. Chloe

KENDALL

Torn Between Two Men

Kendall Jenner is reportedly getting flirty with two NBA sport stars. But she's the one calling the shots...

Chandler Parsons

Kendall and Chandler first met at the gym

D'Angelo Russell

D'Angelo hangs out with Kendall whenever he's in LA

She may have admitted to having a tough time earlier this year, but right now, Kendall Jenner sure has a lot to celebrate. In the same week that she turned 20 and reached 40m Instagram followers, the model was chosen to fulfil her life-long dream by joining the prestigious Victoria's Secret Angels for their annual runway show.

But it's not just the thought of those amazing costumes that's got us all in a frenzy. No, Kendall's been pulled into a very different scenario: a dramatic love triangle between two very eligible guys, Chandler Parsons and D'Angelo Russell – both professional basketball players. Something tells us Kris Jenner will be very happy with this news.

Kendall was first spotted with Chandler, 27, in August last year. The pair were seen getting cosy at popular LA restaurant STK LA, after supposedly hitting it off at the gym.

'I train with [personal trainer] Gunnar Peterson in LA,' Chandler told US chat show host Chelsea Handler last year. '[Kendall] works out before me, so I kind of just got to know her, and then we had dinner.'

But the sports star – who last year signed a $46million three-year contract with NBA team Dallas Mavericks – reportedly cooled things off because of their busy schedules.

'Kendall and Chandler have always had amazing chemistry,' a source tells us. 'But Kendall's career has been crazy and he travels a lot too, so they found it hard to see each other all the time.'

So while Kendall was hitting the catwalks in every fashion capital, Chandler appeared to move on “Kendall and Chandler have always had amazing chemistry” with her Balmain model pal and Leonardo DiCaprio's ex, Toni Garrn, who he has been dating since June. But it seems that Kendall has stayed in touch and feelings have started to develop.

When Kendall appeared alongside Chandler at the launch of his Del Toro shoe event in LA last week, the pair looked every inch the perfect couple – despite Toni also being there.

'Kendall was chatting with Chandler all night,' a source tells Look. 'Toni was there too, but her and Kendall kept their distance and she left early – it seemed like things were pretty frosty between them.'

In fact, Kendall and Chandler were getting on so well at the event that he reportedly invited her to his first game of the season, two days later.

'He gave her two front-row VIP tickets,' an insider tells us. 'She was really excited to go.'

But while Kendall made sure she looked incredible at the game – skinny jeans and heels? Check. Bold red lip? Check – it wasn't just Chandler who she seemed to be interested in.

Kendall was instead said to have kept a watchful eye on the opposing team, more specifically D'Angelo Russell, a 19-year old player for the LA Lakers who has apparently been pursuing the model for months.

'They meet up when they're both in LA,' a source tells us. 'Kendall has become closer to him as he's got "everything" she wants in a boyfriend. He's kind, sweet, considerate and she believes she can trust him.'

While rumours have circulated about the pair, especially after they were spotted deep in conversation at a basketball game in September, he's always tried to deny any sort of relationship. And yet, according to the same source, he went as far as sending Kendall a huge bunch of flowers for her birthday last week – apparently guided by her sister Kylie.

'Kylie's really keen for the two of Kylie really wants Kendall to get with D'Angelo so that she can double date with Tyga them to get together, as she's desperate to double date with her and Tyga,' the pal adds. 'She thinks D'Angelo and Kendall are better suited because of his age and the fact that he's very kind. Kylie just wants someone to take good care of her sister.'

This comes just a month after Kendall admitted to 'having a rough time', which, as Look previously reported, was down to adjusting to her parent's divorce and her dad's gender transition.

Career-minded Kendall is currently undecided about whether she wants another guy in her life permanently.

'She's not sure if her and D'Angelo have the right chemistry,' our source reveals. 'She's still drawn to Chandler because of their connection.'

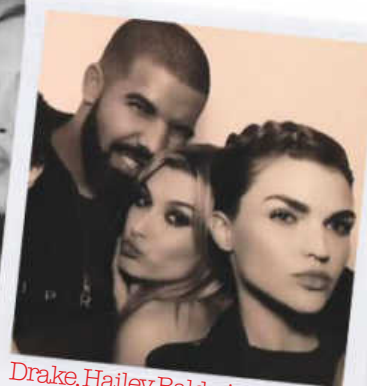

Kendall – who has been linked to Harry Styles and Lewis Hamilton in the past – has yet to go public with a boyfriend. 'Kendall hasn't been keen on anything too serious,' says a source. 'But she's feeling really confident in herself and doesn't feel like she has to rush. It's been hard for her to commit to anyone with all her modelling work, but she knows that may soon change.'

Monogram Your Bomber Like A Celeb!

Your trusty cover-up is about to achieve cult status thanks to the new craze sweeping A-list wardrobes

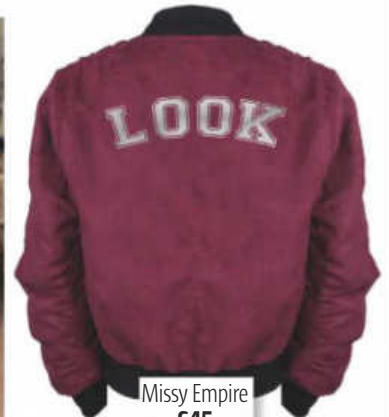

Every 'It' girl worth her Manolos went nuts for Rag & Bone's personalised bomber jackets, which have been spotted on Karlie Kloss and Alexa Chung. Now, monogram mania has hit the high street, too, and luxe label Uzma Bozai is leading the charge with its A-list-approved silk jacket.

Available in four colours, they are embellished by the brand's artisan designers with your moniker of choice. Rosie Fortescue has already snapped up hers in electric blue. It might be pricey at £246, but this quality piece will make for a lifelong investment buy.

If you want a more purse-friendly wardrobe addition, however, Missy Empire has personalised bombers in a spectrum of colours, while Tshirtstudio.com lets you design your own varsity-style jacket from scratch. What are you waiting for? These bombers quite literally have your name written all over them...

'The Day I Found Out My Boyfriend Wanted To Kill Himself'

With four in ten men having considered suicide, Look speaks to Heather Marshall, whose boyfriend is battling depression...

Suicide is the biggest killer of men under 45

Pro Green, with wife Millie, has spoken out about his depression and dad's suicide

I'd only been seeing Finn* for three months when he told me he had thought about killing himself. We were on a night out, he was drunk and made little sense. The next morning, I asked him about it, but he just completely shut down. I kept saying to myself that he must have felt that in the past and it couldn't be what he was going through now.

But it soon became clear that it was. Small incidences began to add up – such as the fact he'd drink heavily, saying it was a way to forget.

I knew that I had to get him to open up, but our relationship was so new that I didn't really know how to approach it.

I started to suspect that Finn suffered from depression, so I ended up taking him to see a show about mental health. At the end of it, he turned to me and said: "I think I need to go and see a doctor." He said that this was the first time he realised that how he felt wasn't normal. He'd never mentioned his feelings to anyone before – he'd been suffering silently for the past six years. He said his suicidal thoughts were fleeting yet terrifying, but that he now knew that he wasn't alone.

I felt an enormous sense of relief, and from that point on we spoke regularly about how he was feeling, as well as taking more practical steps, like arranging for him to see his GP.

But that didn't make it easy. We went through a phase where I was constantly scared that he would hurt himself if we had an argument. I wanted to protect him, but he found that hard. Like Professor Green mentioned recently, he has an idea of what a "man" should be – and that didn't involve being protected. I also have a tendency to want to talk about every single detail, which Finn found too much. In the end, we came up with code words so that he could say how he was feeling without going into too much detail. And his doctor recommended ways for him to release tension, such as ping-pong or an elastic band on his wrist.

He'd drink, saying it was a way to forget

Finn's depression is now just a part of our lives in the same way that a broken leg would be – we just adapt. I see the future as being a continuation of today – us both taking care of each other.'

Suicide & Men: THE FACTS

- According to the charity CALM, suicide is now the biggest killer of men under the age of 45.

Daytime Velvet? Yes, You Can!

Your favourite
after-dark fabric just became an all-hours staple...

From glam LBDs to soft-finish trouser suits, velvet has always been the hero piece of our evening looks. But it seems the fash pack are rebelling against the rules and making it work for day, too.

Kate Hudson, Florence Welch and street stylers everywhere are proving that the plush fabric should be our new daytime winter staple. So, how do you wear it? Well, the high street's latest velvet drop is ticking all the right boxes with kimono, baseball jackets, slouchy pants and even trainers – there's no limit to rocking this season's 'It' fabric. Love Lives

If They're Doing It, We've Got The Pics To Prove It!

Blake couldn't quite manage 'moody pout' as well as Gwen

The Real Deal?

Gwen Stefani
& Blake Shelton

Things are definitely hotting up between The Voice US judges Gwen, 46, and Blake, 39, who have finally confirmed they're seeing each other. 'They are long-time friends who have recently started dating,' Gwen's rep said, after the two were spotted getting cosy over the weekend. And it's obviously going well, with the pop star recently saying, 'I'm in this new life and it's pretty awesome.' Go Gwen!

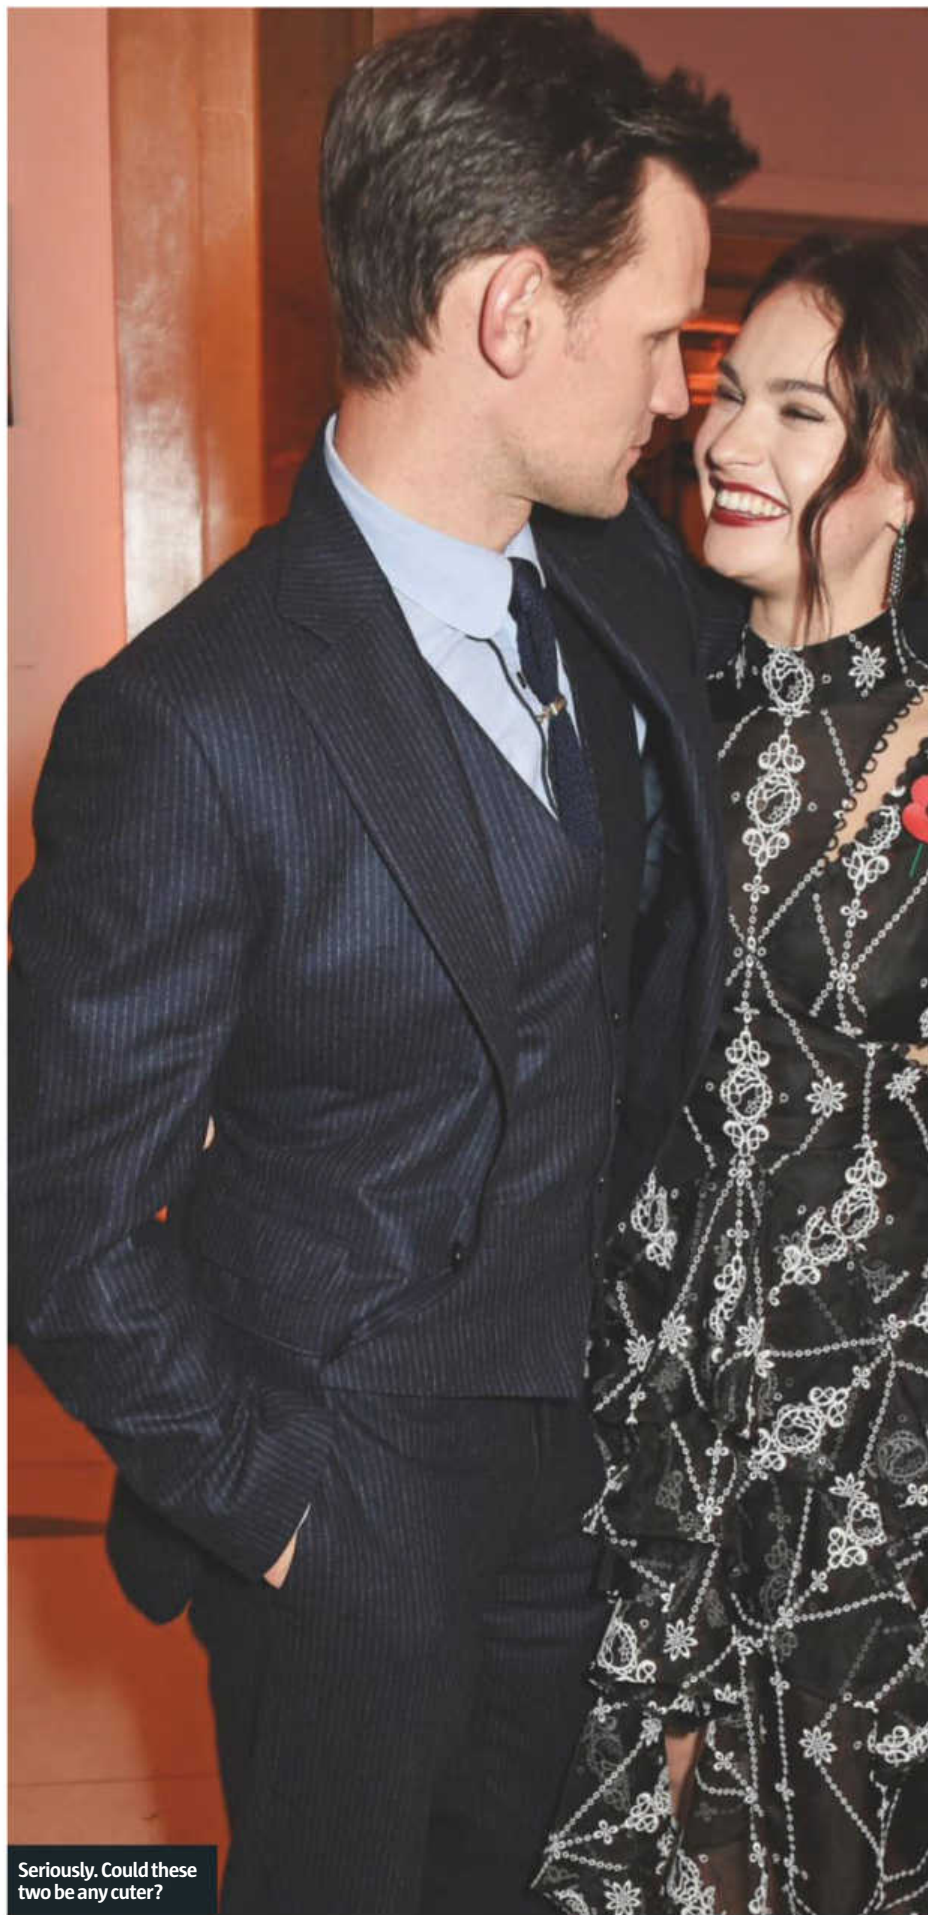

Male pal or something more? Tell us, Caroline!

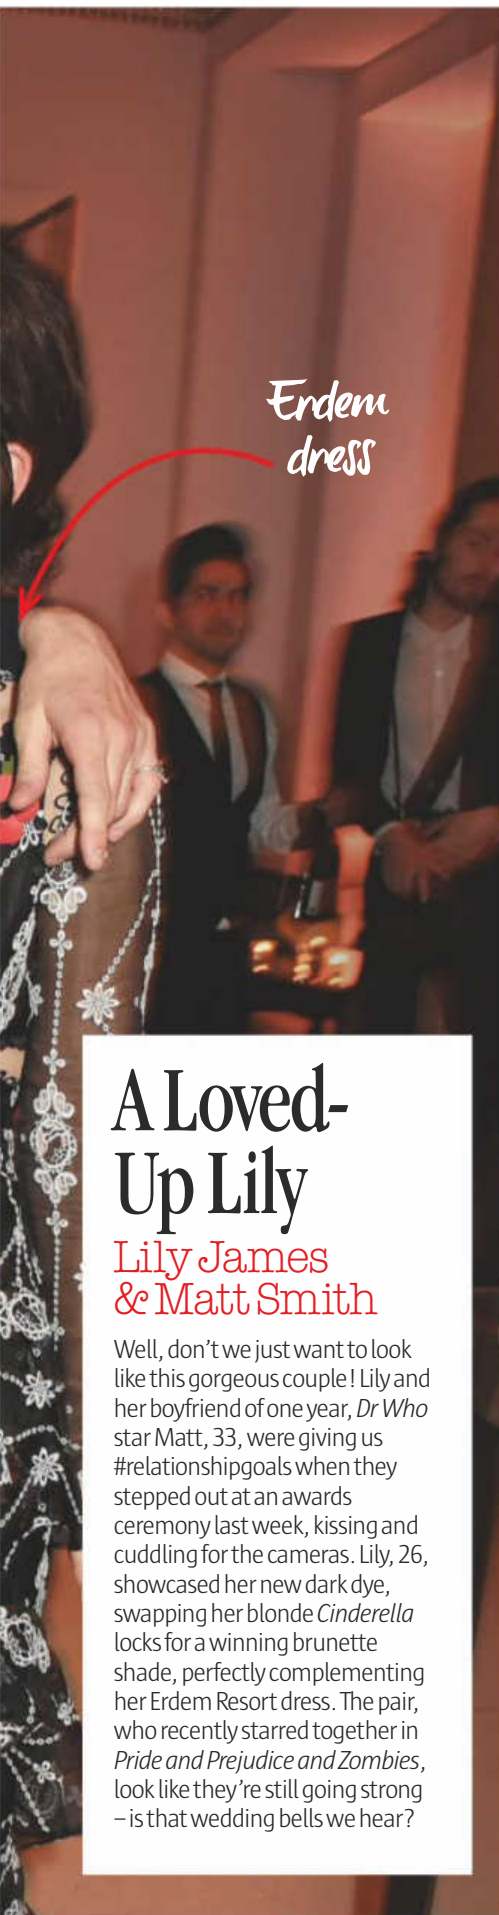

He's Got Her Flack

Caroline Flack & Mystery Man

Right now, Caroline, 35, is on top of her career game – and she may have found the perfect partner to support her throughout the X Factor whirlwind. The presenter was spotted leaving the Music Industry Trust Awards after-party with a mystery man clutching her closely. We can't help but notice he bears a resemblance to her ex beau – music manager Jack Street...

Seriously. Could these two be any cuter?

A Loved-Up Lily

Lily James
& Matt Smith

Well, don't we just want to look like this gorgeous couple! Lily and her boyfriend of one year, Dr Who star Matt, 33, were giving us #relationshipgoals when they stepped out at an awards ceremony last week, kissing and cuddling for the cameras. Lily, 26, showcased her new dark dye, swapping her blonde Cinderella locks for a winning brunette shade, perfectly complementing her Erdem Resort dress. The pair, who recently starred together in Pride and Prejudice and Zombies, look like they're still going strong – is that wedding bells we hear?

Shock Split!

Gigi Hadid & Joe Jonas

Get your tissues ready because G.I Joe are no more. The Victoria's Secret model, 20, and the pop star, 26, are said to have called time on their five-month relationship, citing 'hectic schedules' as the reason. Sob. Let's hope the squad have a girls' night soon...

Guys, say
it ain't so!

It's Official

Kylie Minogue
& Joshua Sasse

She's normally pretty shy about her relationships, but it seems like Kylie, 47, is ready to shout about her new man, Joshua, 27. The singer happily posted pics of her hot bearded fella for the world to see. Does this finally mean she's 'lucky in love'? We hope so.

Family Values

Liv Tyler & Dave Gardner

As rumours of their engagement circle, Liv, 38, has been gushing about current beau, Dave, 39 (who is best mates with David Beckham), calling him 'humble, modest, hardworking and loyal.' Aww. The two recently welcomed their son Sailor, now nine months, and the mum-of-two said, 'I'm excited about my new little family.' Double aww.

Pale palettes aren't just for spring. Stylist Alina Gelzina shows how a pair of baby-blue trousers are ideal for injecting a splash of colour into an autumnal beige knit and stone-coloured beret.

Cosy Cool

One of the easiest ways to tap into winter's top trends is with accessories. Not only will a wool hat and faux-fur stole help dress up even the most basic of outfits, but they'll also ensure you stay stylishly snug throughout the season.

Go Tonal

If you want a top-to-toe tonal look, take a tip from style blogger Carmen Negoita and match your headgear to a longline cover-up. Her Zara checked skirt adds an extra Gucci geek trend tick.

Young, Attractive And Paying For Sex

Meet the women using male escorts. But is it the dark side of dating or just a bit of fun? Look investigates...

Imagine if you knew your next date was going to be perfect. That your companion would hold the door open for you, compliment you and then take you home and give you the best sex of your life.

In the age of Tinder, it's an impossible dream, right? Not for Clare*, 29. Clare knows tonight is going to be amazing. Why? Because her date is an escort and she's paying for the night to go exactly how she wants it. And she isn't alone – the number of male escorts in the UK has tripled in the past five years, ➡

There are three times more male escorts working in the UK than there were five years ago paying for sex is legal, but certain activities surrounding the work, such as pimping, are against the law, so agencies have to operate carefully.

And while you may think that women pay for dates because they 'can't' get them the 'normal' way, Dr Kingston's studies show the opposite. A 'typical' customer is an attractive career woman who does not have time for dating.

'Most of our clients are in their 20s and 30s and very good looking,' says Erwin, who runs escort service The Men's Company. 'They could have sex whenever they want. But they want quality – and from us, they get it.'

Erwin, who receives around 3,000 applications a year from guys who want to be on his books, says he spends much of his time ensuring the men on his site offer the quality his customers expect, especially as they're paying up to £300 an hour. 'It's not just about looks,' he says. 'They have to be intelligent, emotional and – vitally – they must understand women's sexual behaviour.' The Men's Company offers a range of services, from dinner to a tour of a city. However, Erwin says 95 per cent of the time women just want sex. 'Most do look for an emotional connection though,' he adds. 'They can spend months browsing before making a decision.'

'The first escort I saw was recommended by a friend,' says Clare. 'I booked him for three hours for £120. He came in, we chatted for a while then he offered me a massage. It was incredible how he asked me what I liked. It meant I could be totally honest and the sex was amazing.'

However, while Clare's relationship with escorts is physical, others use the service to avoid awkward questions about their relationship status. Anna*, 33, from Glasgow, started taking escorts to work and family parties six months ago. 'I have a demanding career,' she says. 'But I often need dates for events so I researched escorts online. They're always great company and help me dodge questions about whether I'm seeing someone.'

“This way it's guaranteed he'll be intelligent, gorgeous and good in bed”

Michael* works as an escort for Diamond UK, an agency Anna often uses. 'I am seeing more and more clients like Anna, who have very little time for dating,' he explains. 'We come up with the back story beforehand. These women know that they can take me to any event and I'll be well-presented and charming. It's an easy option.'

According to relationship experts, the rise in male escort services comes down to women growing more confident in their sexuality, careers and having a clearer idea of what they want from life – and often that doesn't include a full-time relationship.

'In the future I'd like to fall in love and settle down,' adds Clare. 'But right now I enjoy seeing escorts. I always use protection and it's not hurting anyone, and I'm having brilliant sex every time. Who doesn't want that?'

to meet the huge demand of women who are approaching sex in a very different way. 'I don't have time to go on a dating site and then hope whoever I meet is interesting and attractive,' says Clare, a bar manager from Bristol. 'This way it's guaranteed he'll be intelligent, gorgeous and good in bed. A guy off Tinder can't compete.'

'Most of the women who buy sex are professional people, who want a guaranteed pleasurable experience,' says Dr Sarah Kingston of Lancaster University. She spoke to thousands of people in the industry – and their clients – to find out exactly who is using male escorts. Currently in the UK

Is It Worth It?

Sex therapist Sarah Berry warns using an escort may not be as simple an idea as you first think...

'An escort may not live up to the fantasy,' says Sarah. 'I don't think sex workers can guarantee that customers have an orgasm because sex is more complicated than that. Good sex can come from having a connection with someone. People see sex workers for all sorts of reasons. Some have a good time, some feel a bit empty and some have bad experiences. There are also concerns that some sex workers are being exploited or may not be safe.' It's also worth considering the reasons behind your decision. 'If you're using an escort to combat low self-esteem, it may not be a wise idea,' Sarah adds. 'If you're searching for perfection in another person then you may find it hard to commit to a relationship in the future. And it may result in feeling disconnected from those close to you.'

BURBERRY MODEL

Neelam

'The Industry Is Changing, But There's Still A Long Way To Go'

Look's Victoria Jowett chats to the next big supermodel about everything from her success to getting career advice from Kanye West

Coventry-born beauty Neelam Gill, 20, has already established a modelling career to rival most, including fronting a Burberry Prorsum campaign as her first-ever modelling gig and becoming the first Indian model for the brand. She's now being hailed the next big supermodel.

After a whirlwind of success, she's struck up close friendships with Jourdan Dunn and Cara Delevingne, while also being handpicked by Kanye West to star in his show for Adidas last year. Add to that she has a whopping 50,000 followers on Instagram. Neelam also hit the headlines earlier this year after reports began to circulate that she was dating former One Direction singer Zayn Malik. While she's kept schtum, the rumours have only fuelled her success further.

I headed over to her model agency's HQ to chat about her explosive career and steal her beauty secrets, natch...

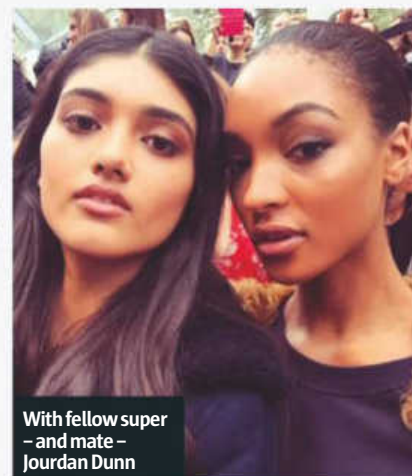

Hi Neelam! Where did your modelling career begin?

When I was first scouted I really didn't think anything of it. I had glasses and braces, and my mum was convinced it was a scam. I got scouted by loads of agencies, but for some reason I kept the Models 1 card. About a year later I went into the agency with my mum – I was only 14 – and they signed me that day. I didn't really start working until I was 18.

You made your worldwide catwalk

“When I was first scouted I had glasses and braces – my mum thought it was a scam”

With fellow super – and mate – Jourdan Dunn debut for Burberry – what was it like walking for such a big brand?

I was so young when I did Burberry! I was 18 and had only just started modelling. I was so excited, it was so surreal. I didn't really believe this was my life. This season, I watched the show with Jourdan [Dunn] and we were reminiscing about how nerve-racking it can be. We'd be backstage with live cameras streaming the catwalk and we could see everyone arriving, and the seats slowly filling up. I remember seeing Anna Wintour's hair and sunglasses and thinking: 'Oh. My. God.' If I did it now I'd probably be even more nervous! Back then I was the new girl no one really knew – now people know me, I'd feel more pressure.

How did it feel being the first Indian model fronting such a huge campaign?

It felt crazy to me, I didn't even realise there hadn't been an Indian model in their campaign before. I think that's why I talk about it so much and bring awareness to that fact, because people don't realise the lack of diversity. The fashion industry is changing but it still has a long way to go.

Was it surreal seeing your face on a billboard for the first time?

Definitely. When I first saw the campaign I was driving past the Knightsbridge store. They were literally putting my face up on the side of a building as I drove past!

What about when you walked for Kanye West in his Adidas show – how was that?

I've always loved rap music and I've always really admired Kanye West. He came up to me after the show and said: 'I'm so proud of you, keep killing it.' It was just so surreal.

Neelam Gill Interview

You've mentioned the lovely Jourdan Dunn, has she given you any career advice?

When I met her I remember thinking: 'Wow, she's such an amazing model!' but then you chat to her and she's really nice and down to earth, too. She always tells me: 'You are doing really well, but don't forget to make time for yourself. There is no point working so hard if you don't have time to enjoy it.' Jourdan and I are quite similar, we both work really hard and never really take a break.

Are there any other models who you admire?

I think all the Burberry girls have done so well – they've established themselves not just as models but they've made names for themselves. I love Rosie Huntington-Whiteley, she's got her own lingerie line, she acts and she's done Victoria's Secret, she's really inspiring. A lot of people see modelling as a short-lived career, but I think if you are smart with it you can build your career into anything you want.

We've seen models like Cara Delevingne and Suki Waterhouse go into acting – is that something you've ever wanted to do?

Definitely! I think that with modelling you are kind of acting. At the minute I still feel like I have so much I want to do as a model, but if I were to go into acting I'd want to make sure I went to acting school first to learn everything about it.

Other models like Karlie Kloss have started YouTube channels and I see you have one too! Were you inspired by her?

I love Karlie Kloss's YouTube channel! I started YouTube as a way to interact with fans. I thought I'd do a couple of Q&As as I got asked so many questions on Twitter, but now I've started filming more videos. To be honest most of them are just me ranting to my webcam [laughs]. I do like to address issues like bullying and depression. I try and remind people that you just have to focus on yourself and remember you're doing the best you can.

Do you feel like that belief has helped you handle the pressures of the modelling industry?

It's definitely helped, but I still feel like I'm not 100 per cent secure in myself. I have a long way to go, especially because I feel like I'm constantly surrounded by so many successful women. I try not to compare myself with others but it's a bit like a roller coaster – you have to be prepared.

Do you have to deal with online trolls or negative comments?

I ignore most of the negative comments, but if they're particularly bad I like to reply and kill them with kindness. I normally get a reply apologising and explaining they never thought I'd read it! But I also get so many great comments that help me. When I'm having a down day I'll just go on Twitter and it lifts me up.

How have your friends and family reacted to your modelling success?

My family are so supportive, I wouldn't be able to do it without them. My family are the reason that I'm still myself. They are proud of me but they let me know that just because my career is going well, life still goes on as normal. I don't want to have 'yes' people around me all the time, I think the reason a lot of people in this industry go off the rails is because they have people around them constantly saying: 'You can do no wrong.' My friends and family are just so honest.

Your brows are always on point, what's your secret?

I get them threaded every two weeks because I'm shooting almost every day and they need to look neat. If your brows are thin you should try the Blink Nourishing Brow Oil [£16]. I also avoid tweezing. Brows are such a big thing and make such a difference to how they shape your face, so it's better to leave them to the professionals.

How about exercising – what are your favourite workouts?

I have to switch it up or I get bored. I do a few days in the gym on my own, I'll go on the treadmill and use ankle weights and resistance bands, but I've also been loving reformer Pilates too.

What apps do you love and hate?

I'd have to say I love Instagram, I probably couldn't live without it [laughs]. I would never get Tinder! In fact someone tweeted me saying they were talking to me on Tinder and I was like: 'Er, what?' I checked my phone just in case my friends had downloaded it as a joke. They hadn't – it turned out someone was pretending to be me [laughs].

Has your style changed since becoming a model?

I used to be so girly, now I'm such a tomboy. I just want to be comfortable on my days off. I'm always on set getting glammed up so when it comes to days off I want to be comfy.

NEEDLEPOINT FLORAL: YOUR NEW TEXTURE FIX

One of the most beautiful trends of the season, embroidery has wowed the red carpet and every fashionista on the block

● First spotted on the runways of Mary Katrantzou and Erdem, this intricate embroidery has finally worked its way onto the high street.

● When it comes to dress length, anything goes, but as far as the silhouette is concerned, be sure to opt for fitted styles to better show off the detailed handiwork.

● If the fully embroidered effect is too statement, frocks with needlepoint detail around the neck, on the sleeves or at the waist will do the trick.

MAXIS GET A WINTER-OVER

OK, so we know maxis are a summer staple, but with double layers, weightier fabrics and moody prints, they've been made winter-ready. Here's how to wear them and beat the chill

● They might be full length, but you can still rock tights with them. We'll be wearing ours with grey knitted ones and block heels.

● Woodland prints + teal faux fur = a match made in style heaven. Work your printed maxi with a furry gilet for a cosy winter ensemble.

The AW15 Power Print

Graphic Geometric

Cropped kick-flare trousers are a key shape for autumn, so why not tick off another trend with a pair in a bold geometric finish? Team with basics like knitted jumpers or a denim shirt to ensure they stand out to the max.

Folksy Florals

This printed tee nails the winter Woodstock trend, and is the perfect partner to a pair of slouchy jeans for a casual weekend look. Try it with a leather mini for date night, too.

s To Wear Now

Meet the new statement patterns that'll see you through the season in style

Statement Snakeskin

The fashion pack have gone wild for python-printed skirts and accessories. This dress is great for making an impression at a party, but if you want a more subtle approach, go for a snake clutch instead.

Chevron Stripes

For an alternative to nautical stripes, give asymmetric chevron lines a whirl. This kooky pencil skirt is an easy answer to on-trend workwear. Simply smarten with a pair of loafers and a white shirt. ➡

Sixties Psychedelic

Mary-Janes and a classic mini give a nod towards the season's mod-inspired trend. But if you want to make more of a statement, pick pieces in retro 'wallpaper' patterns, like this skirt.

Chunky Checks

It's easy to channel this season's geek-chic trend – just add a jumbo tartan print. Trade in the roll neck for a pussy-bow blouse and knitted cardie for a Gucci-esque runway look.

Bouclé Brocade

The high street is brimming with tapestry prints and paisley patterned pieces. If you're going to invest, opt for a trophy jacket in a shiny bouclé fabric to dress up even the most basic outfits.

Pop Art

Eye-popping monochrome patterns, particularly polka dots, took over the catwalks at Bottega Veneta and Emilio Pucci. Wear jumbo spots, grid prints or oversized checks together for a cool clash.

THE 8 PLACES YOU SHOULD BE WEARING A HIGHLIGHTER

Gigi Hadid

1 Centre Of Forehead

Sparingly dust a little highlighter along the centre of your forehead to light up your whole complexion.

2 Inner Eyes

Wake up tired peepers with a pop of shimmer in the inner corner of each eye.

3 On The Nose

Slim your nose in seconds with a sweep of highlighter down the centre.

4 Brow Bone

Get angel-worthy arches by enhancing the skin just under your brows.

5 Cupid's Bow

Make your pout look extra plush by dusting a little highlighter over the centre of your upper lip line.

6 Mix Into Your Base

Add a drop in with your foundation to give yourself a healthy glow.

7 Tip Of Chin

Blending a speck of highlighter here will help to balance your features.

8 Tops Of Cheekbones

It's a no-brainer, but adding a sheen high up on the cheeks will help boost your bone structure instantly.

FIND THE RIGHT HIGHLIGHTER FOR YOU

FAIR

Go for a frosted pink like Barry M Light Me Up Liquid Highlighter, £4.99.

MEDIUM

Make Becca Shimmering Skin Perfector Poured in Moonstone, £30, your new BFF.

OLIVE

Delilah Pure Light, £36, contains the ultimate blend of warm golds to flatter your skin.

DARK

Use By Terry's Cellularose Blush Glacé in Ice Dream, £38, to illuminate without chalkiness.

Create Your Own NEW SEASON STYLE

We've picked our favourite three looks of the season, making them the beauty trends you need in your life...

We've been busy investigating the season's beauty trends, and after scouring the coolest catwalks, we've narrowed it down to our top three favourites!

Lucky for you, we've teamed up with legendary hair stylist and VO5 Ambassador, Claire Rothstein, to bag some top tips on how to recreate these looks at home.

First up, 70s style has taken centre stage this season, and the 'do that's captured our hearts is big waves for the ultimate in retro chic.

Next up, straight hair = seriously cool. That's right, poker-perfect locks are back, so now's the time to go glossy and get your sleek on.

Finally, it's La Dolce Vita updo. The homage to old-school glamour epitomises cool like no other. The secret to the look? Va-va volume!

So now you know the styles to rock, here's how to nail them (the easy way).

Retro Wave Revival

Undone Waves Win: 'The trick with waves is for them to look effortless,' says Claire. 'This can be achieved with having no rules as to how you tong or set your hair. Simply grab random sections and then tong in different directions.'

Texture Trick: 'Use your hands and keep the texture coming with VO5 Voluptuous Waves Shape My Style Creation Hairspray.'

Not-So-Perfect: 'Remember, you want to ensure the waves appear undone and lived-in for a boho vibe,' says Claire. 'For texture, spritz VO5 Give Me Texture Rough & Sexy Sea Salt Spray into towel-dried hair before blow-drying.'

Wear It With: Continue the 70s theme with a stroke of bronzer, a gold smokey eye and a nude lip. Beautiful!

*BASED ON THREE CONSECUTIVE YEARS' NIelsen RWS TOTAL SCANTRACK. CLIENT DEFINED HAIR STYLING VALUE. RRPs ARE UNILVER. SUGGESTED RETAIL PRICES ONLY. IT IS AT THE DISCRETION OF THE INDIVIDUAL RETAILERS TO SET THE ACTUAL PRICE.

Sleek 'N' Chic Rules

Blow-Dry With Benefits: 'Spritz damp locks with VO5 Nourish My Shine Bedazzling Oil Heat Protector,' says Claire. 'Next, blow-dry the hair, brushing the cuticles down, which will smooth and give every strand a shine.'

Fight Frizz Attacks: 'You can use a serum (such as the VO5 Smoothly Does It Frizz Free Cream) on the lengths and ends if your hair tends to get frizzy,' says Claire.

Get Glossy: 'Spray VO5 Sublime Sleek Shape My Style Creation Hairspray through the lengths and lightly run some straightening irons over your hair to really cement that shine. The Creation Hairspray will help prevent fly-aways and keep hair sleek all day long,' says Claire.

Extra Cool Points: Wear your straight strands with a bold, graphic eyeliner look, the fiercer the better!

Cheat Thickness: 'Start by prepping your damp roots and lengths with VO5 Plump It Up Weightless Mousse before blow-drying,' explains Claire.

Add A Wave: 'Next, spray VO5 Dramatic Volume Creation Hairspray through the hair lengths as you tong random sections. You can then layer the Creation Hairspray and tease with your fingers to create volume and hold.'

Natural Finish: 'Use your hands to pull your locks up into a cool chignon and use pins to secure strands in place. Pull a few tendrils out of the 'do for a sultry finish.'

Perfect The Look: Team with a red lip and a feline flick. Next stop, the Riviera!

Super-Pigmented Lip Lacquers

High shine + non sticky = the all-new glosses we love

1 Chanel Rouge Allure Gloss in Suprême

Look's Sam: This gloss gives a really even colour, and felt smoother compared to the others, which were a bit sticky. That sleek black case is so sophisticated.
Philly: I love the click-and-pop packaging, but it's slightly above my price range for a gloss.

2 Primark PS. Love Liquid Lipstick in Red

Look's Sam: I'm addicted to the sugary scent, and the colour is second to none, especially when you consider the bargain price.
Philly: It felt lovely and smooth, and I was so impressed with its staying power. The sweet scent could become sickly after a while, though.

3 Urban Decay Revolution High Colour Lip Gloss in Bittersweet

Look's Sam: When this gloss says it's super pigmented, it really means it. The long wand made for easy application, too.
Philly: I love this. The colour might look 'out there', but it's very wearable, and the shine lasted all day.

4 MAC Vamplify Lip Lacquer in Speed Up

Look's Sam: Clever colour-boosting technology means the bright shade you apply in the morning stays that way all day. Nevertheless, the formula wasn't as shiny as the others.
Philly: I got so many compliments, and it felt moisturising, which I've never had from a gloss.

5 Make Up For Ever Artist Plexi- Gloss in Burgundy

Look's Sam: I love to wear dark reds, but even after applying a few layers, it wasn't quite as deep a colour as the tube suggested.
Philly: It's the perfect berry shade for autumn, but I usually prefer slimmer applicators compared to this gloss's wide wand.

All You Need For The Perfect Mistletoe Kiss

Get ready for your most dazzling smile (and Christmas) with Pearl Drops Lasting Flawless White

*SOURCE: 2,000 SHOPPER REVIEWS OVER EIGHT WEEKS THROUGH DUNNHUMBY'S BUZZAGENT. CONSUMERS RECEIVED FREE PRODUCT

The Christmas tree lights are shining and the drinks are flowing. Forget about the most wonderful time of the year – the festive season is definitely the most romantic time of the year. And if there's one thing you want, it's a kiss under the mistletoe – that's where Pearl Drops comes in, because a dazzling white smile is all you need to get those Christmas kisses.

Having a smile so powerful that it can capture hearts is a fabulous confidence booster, letting your inner beauty shine through. Say hello to Pearl Drops Lasting Flawless White, which delivers more than just beautiful teeth. Using superior technology, clinically proven ingredients and over 40 years of whitening experience, Pearl Drops Lasting Flawless White is your go-to teeth-whitening experience.

In the same way as you'd pop a highlighter on your cheeks, new Pearl Drops Lasting Flawless White Toothpolish highlights white teeth, plus it removes stains and fills in imperfections, restoring the natural, glossy tooth surface to reflect more light. Teeth are visibly whiter after just five days, and after two weeks it gets rid of 100 per cent more surface stains than a regular toothpaste. But keep brushing, as Pearl Drops' patented Stain Prevention Technology helps lock out new stains, too.

So, now all you need is that mistletoe and an on-trend lip colour. We can't guarantee it'll stay on for long, though...

■ Available from larger Boots and Superdrug, in-store and online, RRP £6.99; Pearldrops.co.uk.

97% of 2,000 consumers gave Lasting Flawless White a positive rating after use.*

Kate Hudson

Well, if it's good enough for Kate...

Move over Kim Kardashian, Kate Hudson is our new booty icon! In a recent Instagram post, Kate, 36, revealed the gym hack she swears by. Let us introduce you to the Booty Belt. The brand-new device, which has stormed Twitter, tones the glutes and tightens the thighs via a series of resistance bands. Kate's said to be 'obsessed' with the contraption, which reportedly burns 200 calories in only 20 minutes!

'The variation of exercises that the belt provides actually tone, lift, and round the gluteus,' says Booty Belt founder and personal trainer, Dominic Banks. 'But it also works on the hard-to-reach abdominal and thigh regions.' Yep, that's trainer speak for a seriously tight and toned behind.

Dominic recommends using the Booty Belt two to three times a week. Simply tie it around your waist and ankles then put your feet through the elasticated hoops. Then get down on your elbows and knees, and, keeping one knee on the ground, extend your other leg all the way out then lower down again. Then switch and repeat with the other leg.

'To activate the tension, keep your other foot on the ground while you are performing the exercise,' Dominic says. 'This tones the quad and burns a lot more calories by making the body work harder.'

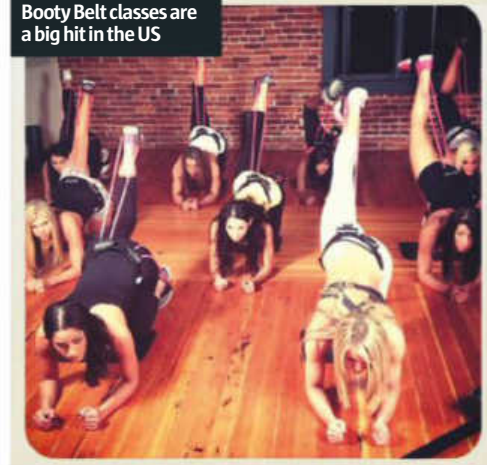

And it's not just your booty that will benefit. 'You are supposed to feel a burn all over the body, not just the butt,' says Dominic. 'Many of my clients have said that the belt is a full body workout and appreciate the fact that it sculpts other areas.'

If Kate's killer shape is anything to go by, we're putting in our order for a Booty Belt pronto!

Fathers And Daughters

A tear-jerking tale of a writer (played by Russell Crowe), who struggles to raise his little girl after suffering a breakdown. The story moves back and forth to 27 years later, as his daughter Katie (Amanda Seyfried) is all grown up and battling issues of her own. Don't forget the tissues.

■ Out 13 November

The Superhero You Need To Know

Rising star Krysten Ritter is Netflix's new leading lady in Marvel's hugely anticipated show Jessica Jones. Here's the lowdown...

1 She's totally badass... Fans of Daredevil will love Krysten's edgy portrayal as Jessica Jones – a superhero-turned-private detective in New York battling with her own demons. We. Can't. Wait.

2 She is Jessica Jones... 'She's incredibly dynamic,' Krysten says. 'She's everything that a character, or a woman, can be. She's tough, strong and very cool... By the end of filming [I'd] see something that's kind of scary and my instinct [was to] beat them up!'

3 Comedy is her thing... Far from her dark character Jessica Jones, the kooky 33-year-old actress is known for the eponymous character Chloe in US sitcom *Don't Trust The B*tch In Apartment 23*. 'B*tch stands for being in control of yourself,' she revealed. Go, Krysten!

4 She nails 90s grunge... 'I'm usually in boots and a little dress,' Krysten says. 'I don't love wearing heels in my everyday life because I'm pretty tall.'

5 Music's her first love... She also sings and plays guitar in indie rock band Ex Vivien. Could this girl be any cooler?

■ Jessica Jones is released on Netflix on 20 November

Emma Bunton gets busy in Absolutely Fabulous: The Movie

SPICY CAMEO

Our excitement for the Ab Fab movie is off the scale right now. The latest clips show Patsy and Eddie making a pilgrimage to visit a memorial shrine to Kate Moss. RIP, Mossy! The pair also step out with Eddie's new client, Emma Bunton. Roll on 2016 – we wanna know who, what, why Mossy was bumped off! Wah!

Hair Tattoos Go HUGE!

Ever since Kylie Jenner sported a hair tattoo, we've become obsessed with the trend. Want in? Our Beauty Editor, Sam, tells us how to nail the look

- 1 Blow-dry your hair so it's flat and straight – this won't work on super-curly hair.
- 2 Cut out an Orelia tattoo, £8, for a pack of 13. Next, place a wet cloth over the top of the tattoo and transfer it onto hair.
- 3 Ta-dah! Your tattoo is complete and will stay there until your next hair wash.

40 is set to be the biggest-selling denier this winter, according to hosiery hotspot Marks & Spencer, which sells 30 million pairs of tights a year. That's enough to reach from London to Sydney and back again if tied from end to end, toe to toe.
